

Recruitment placement costs for healthcare roles can vary based on factors such as the position's specialization, geographic location, and the staffing firm's fee structure. Below is a table summarizing average recruitment fees for select healthcare roles:

Healthcare Role	Average Recruitment Fee
------------------------	--------------------------------

Physician	Staffing firms typically charge 20% to 30% of the physician's first-year salary as a recruitment fee. For example, hiring a physician with a starting salary of $250,000 would result in a recruitment fee ranging from $50,000 to $75,000.
------------------	--

Surgeon	Similar to physicians, recruitment fees for surgeons are generally 20% to 30% of the first-year salary. Given that surgeons often have higher salaries, the recruitment fees can be substantial.
----------------	--

Physician Assistant	Recruitment fees typically range from 15% to 20% of the first-year salary. For instance, with an average salary of $130,000, the recruitment fee would be between $19,500 and $26,000.
----------------------------	---

Nurse Practitioner	Similar to physician assistants, fees range from 15% to 20% of the first-year salary. For a salary of $130,000, this equates to a recruitment fee between $19,500 and $26,000.
---------------------------	---

Physical Therapist	Recruitment fees for allied health professionals like physical therapists typically range from 15% to 20% of the first-year salary.
---------------------------	---

Advanced Scope offers a more affordable option for private practices with a flat fee versus a percentage of salary. We also guarantee our placements to safeguard your investment.

Our cost versus our competitors because we know private practice can't see ROI otherwise.

- Physician/Surgeon $30,000 - $35,000
- Physician Assistant/Nurse Practitioner $15,000 - $20,000
- Physical Therapist $15,000 - $20,000